267 Main Street, Crown Hotel	Note: If needed we have a sketch of the new hotel from an advert in the Lilydale Express.	The inclusion of image is considered not necessary, as additional historical imagery has already been provided within the citation and the additional image would not add any further understanding of the place.
161 Main Street, Olinda Hotel	Paragraph 3: Not sure what this means as the original building is inside the hotel as evidenced by the staircase. See also John Hutchinson's diaries and his description of building his home. Match the diary entries with what is present today to provide conclusive evidence.	The citation currently reflects the fact that the existing building built on and extended the original hotel. No further changes are needed to accurately reflect this.
33-61 Edinburgh Road, Towri	The new Lilydale Chemist McNamara purchased Towri in the 1940s from Dora Lempriere so I question if Dora owned the This information is not essential to a property until her death. More understanding of significance of the research will need to be done. Perhaps Extent can check out her Probate as Dora was living in South Yarra at the time of her death (PROV).	This information is not essential to an understanding of significance of the place and has been removed to avoid confusion.
	LDHS provided a link to the online Australian Dictionary	This resource was reviewed, however did not add anything further as this of Biography for Helen Dora Lempriere.	history was already covered in the citation.

335 Main Street, Johnston Building	Please note that Wililiam's grandson was antique dealer and collector William Robert Johnston who left all his wealth to establish the johnston Collection in East Melbourne.	While interesting, this information is not relevant to the assessment of significance for the subject site and has not been included
16 Crestway, Willowbank	LDHS notes that they have spoken with Jan Poyner who grew up at Willowbank. They had not heard that the property was owned by Edward Moore Poyner before his joseph Moore purchased it and operated it as a dairy farm until 1922. Perhaps the rate books can help there. The property stretched from the Olinda Creek, Nelson Road, Cave Hill Road and Beresford Road – 70 or so acres all told and the family sold it in 1951 after Jodie's death in 1950.	This additional information is not considered necessary to assessment of significance for the subject site and has not been included
